after, within the space of two days? they were again encountered with the savage people*; and their Captainf HOOPER, and two more of their company were slain.

Then, again, they divided themselves. Some held on their way still northward : and some others, knowing that we were gone westward, sought to meet with us again; as, in truth, there was about the number of 25 or 2,6 of them that met with us, in the space of four days again.

Then we began to reckon among ourselves, how many we were that were set on shore: and we found the number to be 114: whereof two were drowned in the sea, and eight slain at the first encounter; so that there remained 104, of which 25 went westward with us, and 52 to the north with HOOPER and INGRAM. And as INGRAM since hath often told me, there were not past three of their company slain; and there were but 26 of them that came again to us. So that of the company that went northward, there is yet lacking, and not certainly heard of, to the number of 23 men: and verily I do think that there are some of them yet alive, and married in the said country, at Sibola; as hereafter I purpose, GOD willing! to discourse of more particularly, with the reason and causes that make me so to think of them, that were [thus] lacking; which were DAVID INGRAM, TWIDE, BROWNE [p. 259],, and sundry others whose names we could not remember.

Being thus met again together, we travelled on still westward, sometimes through such thick woods that we were enforced to break away, with cudgels, the brambles and bushes from tearing our naked bodies. Some other times, we should travel through the plains in such high grass that we could scarce see one another. And as we passed, in some places, we should have of our men slain, and fall down suddenly; being stricken by the Indians, which stood behind trees and bushes, in secret places, and so killed our men as they went by: for we went scatteringly in seeking of fruits to relieve

We were also, oftentimes, greatly annoyed with a kind of fly, which in the Indian tongue is called, Teqitani, and the Spaniards call them Musketas [mosquitos].

There are also in the said country, a number of other flies, 2but none so noisome as these teqmnies be. You shall hardly
